Funds For Red Cross Reach $514

Eighty-four dollars and forty cents had been collected for the Red Cross by Tuesday of this week, it was announced by Margaret Sease, student chairman. This drive will end Saturday at dinner, and a goal of 100 per cent participation by the student body and faculty has been set for Winthrop.

The faculty had collected $450 on Tuesday, according to Dr. Allen D. Edwards, faculty chairman. Participation at that time was approximately 60 per cent.

By dormitories the percentages were computed as follows on the second day of the campaign: Breazeale dormitory, 42 per cent; Roddey and Senior, 25 per cent each; South, 22 per cent; Bancroft, 2 per cent, and North, 1 per cent.

Miss Sease urged that every one contribute something, because "no matter how small a contribution may seem, every bit helps."

A movie concerning this drive was shown during assembly Tuesday, following a brief resume of Red Cross activities of recent years by Betty Ballenger, co-chairman of the dormitory canvass.

International Relations Club Reorganized

The final reorganization of the International Relations club of Winthrop college was completed at the February meeting. At this meeting the official constitution was voted on and approved, and officers elected for the semester at a previous meeting began to function.

The officers include Alice Lucas, president; Margaret Rallings, vice-president; and Eleanor Johnson, secretary-treasurer. Virginia Fouché and Lucille Randall are social and publicity chairmen, respectively. Virginia McClary is chairman.

The club, whose purpose is to further student interest and understanding of international and national problems and relations, is at present planning to send delegates to the Southeast International Relations Club Conference to be held at Randolph-Macon in Ashland, Va. in April. At this conference the theme, "Peace Through Understanding," will be stressed in the speeches and forums.

Dr. Harold Wolfe and Miss Ruth Roettinger are faculty advisors.

WC Included In Survey

Mrs. Pauline Park Wilson, dean of the school of home economics at the University of Georgia, and Miss Jessie Harris, director of the school of home economics at the University of Tennessee, were at Winthrop, March 4 and 5 as representatives of the American Home Economics association.

Mrs. Wilson and Miss Harris are conducting a survey of 60 colleges throughout the country, fifteen of which are in the South. Winthrop is one of the colleges included in the survey.

"Tricycle Set" Textbook Collection Now On Display

By LIL ALLEN

From "a is for apple," to "a is for Albert and his atomic scouter," is the progress of textbooks for the "tricycle set" as shown in the recent exhibit displayed by the education department on the second floor of Kinard hall.

The purpose of this exhibit is to indicate the interesting changes and improvements that have occurred in children's readers.

The material was obtained from various sources. Miss Dena Loch-schmidt is the shelf's originator in the education classes, is "From the old to the new, in books for grade two." The first book on exhibit, the "New England Primer," is dated 1785. In this era in textbook literature "religious salvation" is the main idea, and the moral is plainly stated at the end, thereby being impossible to overlook.

Pages from "McGuffey's Second Reader," which bears the copyright 1836, are shown. Additional pages are from the edition of 1850. The print used in these books is small, and the material is much more advanced than the later books for grade four.

The easier series, presenting contrast, but still not up to the present standards, bears the date 1889. Haliburton's Second Readers, 1912, and the 1917 edition of "The Child's World" begin to transform slightly to the form of present day books.

In the 1925 to the present day exhibit, only a few changes occur in the readers, such as better illustrations, larger type and pictures, and a continuous moral. It is also interesting to note the complicated sentence structure and words of the "McGuffey Readers," once the by-word of American schools.

The exhibits will be changed regularly, and Miss Lochschmidt commented, "I am very interested in these exhibits, and would like to build up a library for children from the first grade to the junior high age."

Were You An Absentee?

Vacant seats were plentiful Thursday night, February 27, at the Student Government meeting. Since it was not compulsory, a majority of the student body did not feel it was necessary to attend.

Plain old lack of interest seems to be the reason why there were such a great number of absentees. Some students do not realize how important it is to be present at all Student Government and class meetings.

The purpose of the meeting was to introduce eight students, candidates for the four major campus offices, to the student body. Each made a brief campaign speech, and those who were absent missed an excellent opportunity to decide which candidates they would vote for if there was some doubt in their minds.

This whole question boils down to the simple fact that there is a need for more school spirit—the kind of spirit which manifests itself in a sincere and deep interest in what is happening on the campus, and especially interest in all things which concern the student body as a whole.

It is the duty of the interested students to help eliminate the indifferent attitude taken by some girls. By encouraging them to take an active part in student affairs, Winthrop's school spirit will be strengthened. Negative personalities on the campus can be changed into active, affirmative personalities through cooperation. It is a goal worth working for if the student body is to be a united student body.

Congratulations and A Reminder

The Johnsonian wishes to extend congratulations to the newly elected officers for 1947-48—Margaret Gall, president of the Student Government association; Barbara Watkins, president of the Senate; Isabelle Ford, president of the YWCA, and Emily Baird, president of the Winthrop Athletic association. With the support of the student body, Winthrop campus can expect a successful year under the leadership of these capable major officers.

It was gratifying, indeed, to note the crowding of the polls at Tuesday's election. In spite of the small attendance at the Student Government meeting when the eight candidates were introduced, the number of students who voted was quite encouraging compared to the number of voters in previous campus elections.

When the polls closed at 4:00 p.

m., the list of voters totaled 852. This was slightly over 50 per cent of the student body, but it should have been more. If the results of the elections are to be the will of the entire student body, a large majority must vote.

From now until the end of March more elections will be held from time to time. Next Tuesday minor officers of the Student Government association, the YWCA, the Athletic association, the four class presidents and several others will be elected. Each girl should make it a point to cast her vote, and if she does not know the candidates, she should feel it her duty to find out their qualifications before the day of the election. The importance of voting cannot be stressed too much, and it will be stressed until there is 100 per cent voting of the student body at campus elections.

Get Acquainted

The friendly spirit which exists between most Winthrop students and members of the faculty is fine, indeed, and such a relationship deserves commendation. When students and faculty members come to know each other outside of the class room, a happier atmosphere can be expected on the campus.

The faculty-student relations committee of the YWCA has played a vital part in bringing the two groups together on the campus in friendliness and cooperation. It is this committee which sponsors the informal "get-togethers" after the Saturday night movie.

To further the friendly, cooperative spirit, it would be an excellent idea for students to entertain some of their instructors in their dormitory after Saturday night movies, Artist Courses, Lecture Courses, etc. As a rule, the members of the faculty want to know their students personally so that they can be of more help to them, and students will find that their classes become more interesting after they, too, come to know their teachers better.

Friending between these two groups does exist on other campuses, but Winthrop can be proud of the fact that such a situation does not exist here. To insure the continuance of this friendly atmosphere, more means of bringing students and faculty members together in extra-curricular activities should be provided.

On Freshmen Counselors

With the announcement that freshmen counselors are soon to be named, the qualities of students to fill this important position need to be considered thoughtfully.

First of all, the duties of a freshman counselor call for a mature person. Since the counselor is one of the freshman's first contacts with Winthrop, she should be a tactful, thoughtful, and considerate person. Her primary aim should be one of helpfulness because her duty concerns helping the freshmen become adjusted to college life.

A girl who is interested in becoming a counselor should be willing to devote much of her extra-curricular time to her activities. She should not accept other offices which would keep her from devoting her time to that of being a counselor.

This is one of the most important jobs on the campus because it has such a tremendous influence on the attitude of the freshmen toward Winthrop. This position is open to juniors and seniors as well as sophomores. In the past the counselors have handled their positions capably and wisely. Their work deserves praise because of this.

What We Live By

The Johnsonian wants to deserve a reputation for accuracy, thoroughness, and fairness in covering the Winthrop college campus. You will do us a favor if you call our attention to any failure in measuring up to any of these fundamentals of good newspapering.

Casually

By MARIAN BAKER

With elections in full swing on the campus, Winthrop residents are witnessing some clever political campaign signs. Key-noted by originality, posters and "Vote for" signs continue to appear in the oddest places. A colorful thing these elections!

Appearing on the other side of the campus slate is the warning that mid-terms are approaching quietly, but assuredly, nevertheless. Realizing that such is the case, Winthrop's carefree "flowery" conclusion "Let us now be up and doing" because "Life is real, life is earnest."

The interesting doll collection in the Library is attracting much favorable attention. The collection, which belongs to Miss Denna Lockhead of the education department, contains dolls from South America, the West Indies, China, Japan, the Philippines, Italy, Poland, Austria, and several other countries.

While on the subject of exhibits, the book exhibit on the second floor of Kinross hall presents an interesting study of how times change. A project of some of the education classes, the display features a series of primary grade books dated from the 1700's to the present.

The Red Cross drive ends tomorrow. If you have failed to contribute to this worthy organization, there is still time to "dig down deep" and give something now.

A hearty "thank you" goes to student chairman Margaret Sease and faculty chairman Dr. Allen D. Edwards for their earnest efforts in "digging across" the annual Red Cross drive on the campus.

Surveying the home economics department Tuesday and Wednesday of this week were Mrs. Pauline Park Wilson, dean of the school of home economics at the University of Georgia, and Miss Jessie Harris, director of the school of home economics at the University of Tennessee. Sponsored by the American Home Economics association, Winthrop and Furman university are the only South Carolina colleges included in this survey of home economics departments of 60 colleges in the United States. The study is being made to determine what improvements can be made in college teaching of home economics.

This Week

Guest column by Dot Slatore, YWCA Senior Commission Chairman

All of those students who attended the student body meeting on Thursday, February 20, will agree with me when I say that it came close to being a mad house. Through the chairman's tactful leadership, we had some resemblance of the orderly procedure that all our meetings should have.

Even though our opinions differ on certain issues, the very least we can do is to give each girl a fair chance to state what she thinks. It certainly was a shock to have a meeting turn out like this after two weeks when stress was placed first on etiquette and then on religion in every phase of campus life.

From now on, let's all try to think through the points we try to put over, keep all our comments relevant to the topic under discussion, and above all, let us remember that we are Winthrop students and ladies!

There are several clubs on the campus which promote interest along these lines. The International Relations Club which has recently been reorganized, is planning excellent programs to help guide students in their knowledge of current affairs. Why not take advantage of the opportunities to become more familiar with the participation of the United States and other nations in the progress of world affairs? Are we not interested in our future?

LET'S NOT COMPLAIN — LET'S VOTE

Dear Campus Town Hall,

The voting issue now comes to the fore again as it has in the past. The sixty-four dollar question is: Will only a minority of the girls go to the polls this year as has so often happened in the past, or will every Winthrop girl go to the polls to support her candidate?

This is not a question to be carelessly tossed aside of no consequence, for it vitally concerns every student on the campus. It is up to each student to select her candidate intelligently and to work in an ethical manner for the election of her candidate. But it is not the duty of girls to sit in their rooms and gripe about who is elected when they have done nothing—completely nothing—not even vote! This practice is a reflection on the intelligence and initiative of a Winthrop girl.

The fervent campaigning for this year's minor offices is an excellent indication that students are interested in their government. Already they believe enough in the candidates to give them solid support. The elections are student government elections. That means students sponsor the elections, run for the offices and students decide the final outcome. Doesn't that mean you? Then let's flood the polls!

Sincerely,
 Dolly Ann Dunaway

GREEN PASTURES

Survival of the fittest is the question when those brave souls venture to take someone back to their home town with them. Nevertheless, Mae Della Kennedy took Gladys Lawing with her to Balters; Harriet Gaston saw Willford with Nancy Worke, and Felicia Lawrence packed her traveling bag with Emily Wright for Idaho Springs. Then there was Carolyn Leeper Aah who took a few days to see her husband in Easley and Agnes Boyce who made a family reunion complete with her presence. Sylvia Cal's new nephew gave her reason to desert this, by then, desert island, if many more name are put here.

GUEST OF THE HOUSE

Coming rather than going were Eleanor Van Pooe and Seyla Hill who camped the College with Dot Boyd. Beth Callahan's sister had some of the dormitory life of North, and Evelyn Wiggins visited, too, with Harriet Murphy as hostess.

... Of Things.

THE EGG AND I

You knew this list would come eventually, it couldn't be gotten around. Is your name here? No? Then that's a horse of another color, so skip this. Clemens found so many navy blazers on hand that they practically changed their cadet colors to co-ed company. Adding to the scenery were Miriam Potter, Nell Richardson, Kathryn Crowley, Martha Hewitt, Eleanor Ridge, Virginia Prother, Janet Green, Frances Wilson, Betty Sharp, Inetta Agnew, Vivian Burrows, Pat Henssford, Beth Rainford, Anne Reddie, Nancy Schroder, Mary Carson Tinsley, Jean Young, Betty Kay Wood, Libbe McCorkle, Hilda Brockman and Billie Reddie.

Also Harriet Censor, Rose Thompson, and Betty Jo Hardin attended the Clemens formal.

Going to Presbyterian college instead were Grace Blair, Mary Ann Miller, Louise Dean, Browne Griffin, Averill Boatwright, and Alicia Wallace.

Anne Moska, Pat Mullen, and Jane Graf set a new score by showing N. C. State college South Carolina's college for women at the dances in Raleigh.

MAIN STREET

New York was the stage for the wedding of Betty Zoe Rhame's brother, and that was where she went for a change of the view, too. All the long trip as the crew files came a wire for Virginia Jones from Hawaii for one down road. The luck of the Joneses. Mrs. Harry Knight, the former Ruth Love Davis, last year's president of the Town Girls, visited in Rock Hill last week.

Presbyterians Have Supper For Members

Westminster Fellowship, the Presbyterian student organization, entertained its members with a supper Thursday night, March 6, at the Oakland Avenue Presbyterian church from 5 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. Carolyn Murphy, social chairman, was in charge.

After the meal, Hilda Proctor, president, led the students in a mass meeting to discuss and vote on their new constitution and the Dollar-for-Dorothy project in which the students contribute to the support of a worthy Negro girl's education.

Invited guests included the Rev. Kenneth G. Phifer and Miss Gail Ranklin, director of religious education at the church.

Four Take Ratings In Basketball Clinic

"Woody" Wood, Pauline Palles, and Sara Maner were awarded certificates for local refereeing and "Tubby" Britton qualified as an official for inter-mural contests in the basketball clinic held at Winthrop on March 1. Six students participated in the events, Miss Dorothy Chamings of the physical education department said.

Judges for the practical examinations were Misses Gertrude Knelleken, Dorothy Reeder, Dorothy Chamings, and Doris Tant.

"Y" Gives Social For Students

An impromptu social was given after Sunday Vespers, March 2, by the YWCA officers. Mrs. Barron Nichols was hostess to the students and faculty who attended.

President and Mrs. Henry R. Sims were present to enjoy the surprise which had been decided on the spur of the moment. The "Y" is planning other such after-Vespers entertainments for the students.

Gymnasium To Be Open For Recreation Sunday

Edith McCallum and Dot Allen will be in charge of equipment on Sunday afternoon, March 9, when the gymnasium will be open for recreation from 3:30 till 5:30.

The pool may be used from 3 till 4 o'clock p. m. with Betty Stribling and "Woody" Wood as lifeguards.

Winthrop students and girls and their dates are cordially invited to use the gym, Betty Stribling, president of the WAA, said.

Has a parlor date lowered your morale lately? Don't worry, because someday the sun must shine. This summer, that is. A thing to look forward to! Photo by Betty Carpenter.

'Monsieur Beaucaire' Is Saturday Movie

"Monsieur Beaucaire," starring Bob Hope and Joan Caulfield, is slated to be shown in the College auditorium Saturday night.

In this comedy Paramount has turned Bob Hope loose in the courts of 18th century France and Europe, and the things he gets away with would bring him into any present day court of law.

Joan Caulfield is the pursued object of Hope's affections and also end-man for many of his wise-cracks.

Purposes Of SGN Discussed At The Meeting Yesterday

Sigma Gamma Nu, physical education major's club, discussed the purpose and functions of the organization at their March meeting in the lounge of the gymnasium yesterday afternoon. President Sara Maner presided.

The club is composed of physical education majors from the four classes.

'When Spring So Turns Young Men's Fancy, What Then, Pal?

By JOANNE WATKINS

At last! The day of days has finally arrived! Bill has consented to come up 'n see you and the wonderful school you attend. And it's about time, too, for you've been trying to get him up here for months.

Well, he arrives via the thumb route about 3:00 Saturday afternoon. Undaunted by the fact that he has no car, you cheerfully set out on a sightseeing tour about the slightly soggy campus.

Oh, yes, a slight drizzle left over from yesterday's downpour adds to the general mistiness of the atmosphere which always comes at the wrong times. Past the library and past South down to Main he's trying you wend you way, and in the middle of explaining about seniors' privilege of using the front steps you painfully remember that you didn't sign your John Henrys on the little date book.

Sightseeing Tour

From 3:00 to 4:30 your bounding steps gradually become caked with mud and lose their spring while you rack your brain trying to think of what to do. Then you return to your dorm and sit in the parlor—that ideal place for dating (or so you've been told). Of course, you have to sign in on the little black book to use the parlor. Checks, darts?—ugh, no! What do they think this is—1890?

The conversation lags quite a bit except when someone passes the parlor to gawk at you and Bill. Then the inspiration comes. "We'll walk to town for supper!" ("Pardon me, Bill, I get my rowboat—we'll ride to town"). And so you sign out again—and maybe you know how to spell your name by the time they get through with reading the date book.

Looking like wet mops, you return to your dorm after a lovely swim to town to do something about the way you look—and maybe recharge your worn out brain cells. "Oh, Bill, won't you please put the time on that date book for me while I comb my hair?" And comes time for the movie. You get to the auditorium and discover to your utter enjoyment that you forgot to let them know that you were going to be at the show and dance for a while. (Never knew it was that long a distance to and from the College auditorium—at this rate you will have a beaten path all over the campus. Maybe you ought to sign Daniel Boone on that book!)

On with the Show

Ahhh! The picture show—no need to think of anything to say—the situation is well in hand. Nuff said! That half hour between 10:30 after the dance in the gym, and 11:00 deadline was the best half hour of all. Nuff said here, too! Uh-huh—sign in at 11:00 before your poor befuddled brain forgets.

Well, Sunday arrives with a drearier prospect than ever—no sun. Couldn't make it to church so he comes at 11:30. Sign out at twelve (writer's cramp of the day before is returning already) and you both set out for town. Three blocks from the Andrew Jackson the heavens open, and you drip all over the rug in the hotel waiting for the coffee shop to open. (None of your friends will ever recognize you—don't worry).

Mercifully, the rain has let up just enough so you can get back to school, standing indecisively after signing in, you finally decide to sign out for campus and get out the door only to greet a fresh torrent of rain. ("It's your move, Bill—Isn't this fun! Maybe we are in the 1890's after all.")

And so goes a whole afternoon spent in the parlors or maybe visiting for a girl in another dorm whom Bill promised to see. At 5:00 Bill leaves with no telling what kind of impression. He didn't have to rub it in about how late they stay out at Carolina and how they don't have to practice writing their names there.

Well, he leaves and you hope he'll come back again but rather doubt it. (Wait a minute—did you sign in after coming back from the other dorm on a visit? Yes, we know, you give up).

Six Delegates To Convention On March 10

The College physical education department will send six delegates to a meeting of the Southern District of the American Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation on Monday, March 10. Winthrop is one of six colleges in the southern section which will be represented.

Delegates are Miss Julia Post, head of the physical education department; Miss Dorothy Chamings, assistant professor of physical education, and Miss Gertrude Knelleken, swimming instructor. Seniors Pauline Palles and Nell Bushardt and junior Dot Boyd will also attend the conference.

Miss Post will be on a panel discussion of standards on the college program at a pre-convention meeting of the Southern Association of Physical Education for College Women. She is also a member-at-large of the governing body of the committee of legislation.

Serving on the membership committee, Miss Chamings will assist with the examination of Women's National Official Basketball Rating committee.

Miss Knelleken will attend the aquatics section of the meeting as a member of the National Women's Committee on Aquatics.

Nell Bushardt has been asked to be a member of the Panel at the student section meeting.

The delegates have reservations at the Peabody hotel, and will return to Winthrop on Sunday, March 16.
